

As an engineer and citizen, I am continuously frustrated with my government agencies implementing new regulation without thoroughly considering it's impact. My question to you is this: Have you REALLY thought out the implications of this matter or are you just listening to the "fuzzy math" statistics from a very large and very rich corporation or two? Although I'm SURE that you understand that most Americans would be STRONGLY opposed to the proposed new copyright regulations, you have chosen to either ignore this fact or not care. Some days I just don't know which my government is better at. Please reconsider this matter in a PUBLIC forum. Yes, even more public than a few articles hidden away hoping to go unnoticed. Let's stop this business of making regulation and then asking the public later. Stop and think NOW!
